

What is a Working Paper?

A Working Paper is a first-draft-journal paper or contribution, a research report, a workshop presentation or an essay. Generally speaking, it should have the potential of a full quality paper that is in progress. This can be detailed and formulated by the author(s) within the paper (footnotes) or in an appendix including questions, open points, discussions, outstanding empirical findings and so on. The working papers will be published on dncwps.discourseanalysis.net and it will be possible to comment on the papers. The commentaries should contribute to the further development of the working paper and new versions of the papers can be uploaded by the coordinators.

Why should you submit your working paper to DN CWPS?

The DN CWPS is not “just another working paper series”. The DN CWPS is much more collaborative in spirit, as it gives you a constructive response by two experts as well as offering you the opportunities for social networking with researchers in your field of expertise. The goal of DN CWPS is supporting, extending and deepening debate, hence each accepted paper will obtain two reviews from experts in the paper's field. Both comments will be published in the appendix of the paper. Additionally, every author will be invited to the upcoming DiscourseNet meeting to present the paper and to get in touch with the commentators and other discourse researchers.

The Goal of DN CWPS – DiscourseNet: Collaborative Working Paper Series

The DiscourseNet: Collaborative Working Paper Series reflects ongoing research activity at the intersection of language and society in the interdisciplinary field of Discourse Studies. Prolonging the activities and publications of DiscourseNet, it welcomes contributions which actively engage in a dialogue across different theories of discourse, disciplines, topics, methods and methodologies.

Guidelines

dncwps.discourseanalysis.net

1. Every submitted paper will be reviewed by two referees from members of the “board of permanent referees”
2. Members of the “board of permanent referees” are among others: Saša Bosančić (coordinator), Jens Maesse (coordinator), Ronny Scholz, Jan Krasni, Jan Zienkowski, Giorgos Katsambekis, Johannes Angermuller, Veit Schwab, Matthias Klaes, Johannes Beetz, Marta Wroblewska, Julian Hamann, David Adler, Michael Kranert, Martin Nonhoff, Emilia Palonen, Vivien Sommer, Peter Furko, Madeleine Boehm, Yannis Stavrakakis, Jaspal Singh, Aristotelis Agridopoulos, Benno Herzog, Camila Cmeciu, Amelie Kutter, Delia-Georgiana Badoi, Yannik Porsché, Joanne Hah Sixian, Kaushalya Perera.
3. The reviewers are requested to evaluate the submitted paper according to DN CWPS standards and to compile a short referee report. This review process will ensure that papers published in the DN CWPS are discussion papers with the potential to become quality journal papers after further elaboration. The DN CWPS will help researchers to improve their papers and open opportunities for academic discussion and circulation of ideas.

Funded by the European Research Council (ERC DISCONEX) and other research institutions, DiscourseNet brings together discourse analysts from the social sciences and humanities in Europe. Since 2006, regular meetings have facilitated the debate among different disciplinary and national tendencies in Discourse Studies. Open to everybody interested in discourse research, DiscourseNet now focuses on building up an international community through this website. More information on DiscourseNet activities, publications and the book series can be found at: www.discourseanalysis.net.
